Most of you have heard about the “Window Valet” from Top Down Technology. I have used this product on my Corvettes for years. How that I bought a roadster, it is even better. This product allows you to roll the windows up or down from the outside of your car, using the key fob. Simply click the lock button three times and the windows go up. Or, click unlock three times and they go down. This product also has various modes such as recalling your highest speed or leaving the radio on after opening the doors.

The main purpose of this accessory is to allow you to roll down the windows when approaching the vehicle, like on a hot day. It also allows you to roll up the windows when you walk away from your car. If you just put the top up and want to roll-up the window without re-entering the car, this product works great. We do not like entering or exiting the car with the windows up. This works especially well in tight spaces where you can't open the door all the way. Those side windows want to smash your head or neck.

This is an easy install. Plug the “window valet” into the OBD II connector under the steering column on a C-6 and you are done. On the C-5, there is some simple programming to complete the configuration menu using the Drivers Information Center and Reset button.
